NOTICE TO PRACTITIONERS

20 June 2017

Supreme Court eLodgment System

The Supreme Court of Western Australia has determined that documents lodged by the legal profession in General Division civil cases must be lodged electronically via the eLodgment System from 4 September 2017.

The new system offers significant benefits not only for the courts but also for law firms as registered users will be able to electronically lodge a civil document; receive court documents; view documents for matters in which they are a party; and search all civil matters.

From 3 July 2017, most Supreme Court General Division civil documents will be available for lodgment via the system, in addition to all District Court civil documents.

To assist practitioners in the transition to electronic interaction with the courts, a range of information sessions will be conducted. Series 1 is targeted towards secretarial, support and IT staff with a focus on how to become a registered user and the logistical arrangements law firms might make for effective participation in the scheme.
